SOME REPORT MISSING TOT RETURNED HOME; NO STORY IS VERIFIED

Air About Hopewell Home of Lindberghs Charged With Electricity Today as Rumors Spread Through Vicinity; Many Assert Boy Has Been Home Since Sunday Night

NEW YORK, March 9.—The Lindbergh baby kidnaping case was charged with electricity today.

Reports surged, danced, wriggled and somersaulted along the high tension 'grape vine.'

It was reported that negotiations with the kidnapers were well underway, that the deal had been concluded and even—that the stolen babe had been delivered safely to his noted parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Augustus Lindbergh 72 hours ago.

The main basis of the latter report came from a statement issued by Mayor James M. Curley in Boston who declined to reveal the source of his information.

"I have learned from an authoritative source that the Lindbergh baby was returned to his parents last Sunday night and that the police have been cleared away in order to give the kidnaper a seventy-two hour start, Mayor Curley said.

Mayor Curley threw forth his bombshell while being interviewed on the report that the kidnaping baby had been left at the home.

Against this, Lieutenant Walter Coughlin of the New Jersey state police said:

"The report that the baby has been returned has been circulated for two days. The rumor was revived today. We can get no verification of it."

Previous to the Curley announcement newspaper men dashed to the home of Mrs. Dwight Morrow, grandmother of the baby, following a report that the infant was at the Morrow residence in Englewood N. J.

Servants insisted the child was not there.

The home coming of the missing one was reported in various places.

"He was back in the arms of his mother at Hopewell N. J."

"He was snuggled safely at the residence of his grandmother, Mrs. Morrow."

"He had arrived or was about to arrive at the welcoming threshold of his other grandmother, Mrs. Evangeline Lindbergh in Detroit."

"He was in an unknown hospital under an anonymous name."

DOVER, O., March 9.—Police of Dover were ready today to arrest on a disorderly charge any newsboy who tries to sell a big city extra by shouting out news that the paper does not contain.

City council gave the order after out-of-town news hawkers are reported to have exclaimed "War Declared With Japan," "Lindbergh Baby About To Be Found," and other announcements said to be misleading.

Not only were the cries of the newsboys misleading, but the news in the papers "wasn't worth an extra," council members said. The newsies were accused of "distorting the news and exciting the people."

Big crews of newsboys from Youngstown and Akron were principally blamed by council. A fine of $1 and costs can be levied against any offender and it may be possible to charge the violators with obtaining money under false pretenses, local legal authorities said.

KIDNAPERS' TRIAL BEGINS THURSDAY

WARREN, O., March 9.—Four days after they were arrested for the crime, two Youngstown men today prepared to go on trial tomorrow on charges of kidnaping James DeJure, Jr., 12, of Niles, with intent to extort.

Invoking an infrequently used Ohio statute, Prosecutor G. H. Birrell requested an early hearing for the two suspects when they pleaded not guilty to the charges at their arraignment before Common Pleas Judge Lynn B. Griffith late yesterday. Judge Griffith ordered the accused, Dowell Hargreaves, 30, and John DeMarco, 31, to be ready for trial tomorrow morning.

14 KILLED IN GAS BLAST IN JERSEY TODAY

New Jersey Public Service Co. at South Camden Scene of Disaster

SEVERAL INJURED

19 Workers In Tank As Blast Occurs

CAMDEN, N. J., March 9.—Fourteen men were killed and four others injured in a terrific gas explosion which wrecked a purifying tank box at the South Camden plant of the New Jersey Public service company today.

An official announcement of the toll exacted by the blast was made by officials of the company shortly before noon. Six of the bodies were recovered and taken to a local undertaking establishment. The others are still in the tank, swept by fire after the blast.

IDENTIFY VICTIMS

Identification of the victims was made by James Bever, foreman of the purifying tank.

Bever listed the victims as: John Albert, Dominic Pizzuto, Pasquale Curiale, Frank Deluge, Nicholas Tuini, Nuzzo Farrago, Tony Baldo, F. Kralich and L. Carsons, and E. Anderson, George Williams, T. Watson, J. Pollard and T. Coleman, the latter five negroes.

Nineteen workers were in the tank, Bever said, when the blast let go. Four were burned and were taken to a hospital. One escaped unhurt and the rest were trapped in the tank.

Officials of the company immediately began investigation to determine cause of the explosion.

Police said the men were given first aid at the scene and sent to their homes.

The gas was cleared from the purifying tank box which is merely 15 feet above the ground, officials said, and the day force of 15 men who came on duty at 7 a. m. were ordered to clean the caked refuse from the bottom of the tank. They started the task. About fifteen minutes later a terrific blast occurred in the huge steel boxlike affair.

Those on top were hurled to the ground as flames shot skyward. Other employees nearby were injured.

The men trapped in the tank were killed either by the blast and fire which followed or by the poisonous fumes unleashed.

Markers Are Erected Across County By Highway Employees Wednesday

State highway No. 10 went out of existence Wednesday and the road crossing Pickaway-co from east to west and vice versa will from now on be known as Federal route No. 22. Employees of the state highway department, Wednesday, were erecting new route markers on the highway.

Route No. 22 connects Pittsburgh, Steubenville, Cambridge, Zanesville, Lancaster, Circleville, Washington C. H., Wilmington and Cincinnati. After striking Washington C. H. the route joins No. 3. Another highway, that between South Bloomsfield and Ashville, only recently taken into the highway system, was also decorated with markers Wednesday. This road will be known as State route No. 316.

TWO WOMEN GET PAROLE HEARINGS

Two Pickaway-co women, convicted of stealing an automobile April 12, 1930, will be eligible for parole hearing April 26, according to a report received Wednesday from Ruth Greene, parole clerk at Mansville reformatory for women. The two women named are Daisy Reisinger and Roxie DeSonia.

The Otterbein Brotherhood of the United Brethren church will meet at the community house Thursday at 7:30 p. m.

MOORE PAYS FINE
David Moore, 21, of Columbus, was released from the county jail Tuesday evening after paying part and arranging to pay the remainder of a $100 fine for driving while intoxicated.

Work on Ohio's Highways in 1932 To Be Given Unemployed in Counties

COLUMBUS, O., March 9.—Sixty percent of all employees that will be used to carry out Ohio's highway construction work of $17,000,000 in 1932 will be obtained from the certified unemployed list of county relief committees, O. W. Merrill, state director of highways, announced today.

This measure agreed upon at a meeting of the director and twenty-five Ohio contractors will provide approximately $4,000,000 in work for the needy. The contractors have pledged themselves to give work to those recommended by the relief committees.

ROOSEVELT BEATS SMITH

New York Governor Carries New Hampshire Delegation; Force Confident

CONCORD, N. H., March 9.—Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt today emerged victorious in his first test of strength with Alfred E. Smith for the Democratic nomination for president.

The Roosevelt forces won a clean cut battle in New Hampshire over a slate of Smith-pledged delegates. Eight delegates-at-large pledged to Roosevelt with a half vote each and four Roosevelt delegates in the congressional district with full votes were elected. New Hampshire has eight votes in the national convention at Chicago in June. A total of 22,000 votes were cast.

MARGIN IS LARGE

Unofficial returns from 241 towns and wards out of 294 gave Roosevelt 11,338 and Smith delegates 7,201, a margin of 4,137. The total vote cast was actually over 25,000, but large numbers of ballots, owing to their complicated form, were spoiled.

Roosevelt leaders here today regarded the victory as the beginning of a movement which will end with the New York governor's nomination at Chicago.

Secretary Robert H. Jackson of the Democratic national committee explained the vote as "a spontaneous decision of Democrats in New Hampshire." He declared that Smith delegates got their vote because of Smith's personal popularity and the energy of the Smith campaign.

The margin between the two rivals was much closer than was expected and the result was in the balance until early morning.

CHILICOTHE ELKS ELECT E. R. MILLER
Everett E. Miller has been elected exalted ruler of Chillicothe Elks lodge, succeeding William R. Kramer. Other officers named were: Russell Battisteri, leading knight; Robert Dunkel, loyal knight; O. R. Peehn, returning knight; William Greenbaum, secretary; and Frank Blakeman, treasurer.

The lodge is planning an initiation ceremony on the night of March 21.

Leonard Duncan, 26, Suffers Loss of Right Leg Below Knee Tuesday

BIG BEAM TWISTS

Plucky Man Never Loses Consciousness

Leonard Duncan, 26, of Seaman, Fayette-co., suffered the loss of his right leg just below the knee while working at the new bridge over Saltcreek at Tarlton Tuesday afternoon. He was struck by an 11-ton steel beam.

The man, unmarried, narrowly escaped death. Had the beam struck his head or upper body he would have been instantly slain.

REMAINED CONSCIOUS

He was rushed to Berger hospital by fellow workmen. Duncan, a well built strong man, never lost consciousness. Suffering great pain he gave instructions to other workmen while he was being brought to the hospital.

Experienced in the administration of first aid, workmen applied a tourniquet to the man's upper leg which probably saved his life. Had he been brought to the hospital without first aid he would probably have succumbed from loss of blood before he reached this city.

BEAM TWISTED

The beam which caused Mr. Duncan's injury is 74 feet long, one of two beams used for the full length of the bridge. The other had been placed in position when the second was being placed. It twisted and struck Mr. Duncan.

The injured man is employed as a steel construction engineer by the Fort Pitt Bridge Co. of Batavia, O.

B. P. O. ELKS ENJOY INITIATION, DINNER

Past Exalted Rulers' night was observed at Elks lodge No. 77 here Tuesday evening when five candidates were initiated into the order. They were: Gerald Hanley, Robert Anderson, George Daigarn, Gilbert Starkey and Robert Pickens.

Officers in the chairs at the meeting were Harry Bartholomew, exalted ruler; Felix Caldwell, esteemed leading knight; Max C. Seyfert, Jr., esteemed loyal knight; Frank Marion, esteemed lecturing knight; Harry D. Jackson, esquire; Dr. R. F. Lilly, chaplain, and A. J. Lyle, inner guard.

Following a dinner at 6:30 and the initiation of new members a floor show under the direction of Roland Pontius was enjoyed. Music by the Elks' chorus under the direction of Fred Wittich also had a part in the program.

Visiting Elks were present from Chillicothe, Columbus and Wilmington.

FORMER GOVERNOR SEEKING TAX CUT

No damage was done Tuesday afternoon when an overheated stove pipe caused a fire at the home of Orren Updyke on the E. A. Brown farm in Walnut-twp.

ARTHUR LITTLE DENIES CHARGE TO FACE TRIAL

Negro Pleads Not Guilty When Arraigned Before Judge Adkins

SEYFERT IS NAMED

Trial Date Expected to Be March 28

Arthur Little, 39, colored alleged self-confessed conspirator in the burglary which resulted in the death of John Kidney last Dec. 10, Tuesday afternoon pleaded not guilty when arraigned before Judge Joseph W. Adkins. Although the date has not been definitely set it is expected the trial will begin March 28.

A special jury venire of 60 names was to be drawn Wednesday. Harry B. Weaver, his attorney, appeared in court with the defendant.

OTHERS SENTENCED

Three other conspirators in the crime, Walker Brown, Henry Loudermilk and Lacy Adams have been sentenced to die in the electric chair and are now inmates of the Ohio Penitentiary. A fourth, Franklin Smith, has been sentenced to life imprisonment after being granted mercy by a jury, and a fifth, John Hairston, is now on trial, his case being continued until next Monday on account of illness of his attorney, Charles Dresbach.

Little was arrested last Wednesday in Mt. Gilead N. C. and was returned here Saturday evening. He was the only one of the six who allegedly took part in the burglary and murder who "skipped" after the crime.

SEYFERT NAMED
Max C. Seyfert Jr., was appointed to assist Prosecuting Attorney Emmitt L. Crist in handling the state's case against Little. Mr. Seyfert accepted the appointment. He was asked to conduct the defense of Walker Brown when the first assignment of attorneys in the cases was made but because of the untimely death of his brother, Paul Seyfert, which occurred in an automobile accident, the attorney asked to be excused.

DR. HOSLER'S MOTHER DIES

Amanda-Tp, Fairfield-Co Woman Passes Away at Son's Home in Ashville.

Mrs. Ida May Hosler, aged 69, died at the home of her son, Dr. R. S. Hosler of Ashville, Tuesday at 11 p. m. Complications caused her death. Mrs. Hosler had been undergoing treatment at the home of her son for the past seven weeks. She was the wife of John Hosler of Amanda-twp, Fairfield-co.

Mrs. Hosler was a native of Clearcreek-twp, Fairfield-co, being born July 13, 1862, the daughter of Daniel and Jemima Dresbach Lutz.

Surviving besides the husband, are two sons, Fred of Amanda-twp, and Dr. R. S. Hosler at whose home she died, one daughter, Mrs. Jessie Bussert of Amanda-twp. Funeral services will be Friday at 2:30 p. m. at the Hosler home in Amanda-twp with Rev. Brown officiating. Burial will be in Amanda-twp cemetery by E. F. Schlegel.

'Beer, Lower Tax' Beatty's Stand

EAST LIVERPOOL, O., March 9.—On a 5 per cent beer and 5 cent tobacco platform, James C. Beatty, pottery painter today is expected to file petitions making him a candidate for the gubernatorial nomination for the sixth time.

Beatty, who joined the Republican party two years ago after three unsuccessful campaigns against Former Governor Vic Donahey for the Day of the nomination, announced he has obtained 1,450 signatures for his petitions.

Beatty proposes that the 5 cent tax on beer be collected at breweries. He would limit each county with less than 100,000 population to one brewery. He also advocates 20 per cent reduction in state and federal taxes.

Slain by "Ghost"

First thought to have been a victim of a heart attack, Roderick Roberts (above), Brooklyn, N. Y., dealer in surgical appliances, was found shot to death in his store. The wound was discovered by an undertaker. Despite the fact that the store is in a busy section and the murder was committed in early evening, no one saw the "ghost killer" leave.

MRS. BENTLEY ANSWERS CALL

Resident of This City Since 1879, Dies of Pneumonia Tuesday Evening.

Mrs. Ida May Bentley, aged 59, wife of Ora P. Bentley, 125 E. High-st., died at the home Tuesday at 7:30 p. m. A 10 days' illness of pneumonia caused death.

Mrs. Bentley came to this city at the age of six years and resided here the remainder of her life. She was a native of Pittsburgh, Pa., being born March 18, 1873, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Laurance Ebert.

She was married in this city July 27, 1905, to Ora Bentley who survives her.

Three brothers, Laurance Ebert of Canton, O., and Charles and Edgar Ebert of Columbus, survive.

Mrs. Bentley was a member of the Methodist Episcopal church. Funeral services will be Friday at 2:30 p. m. at the home with Rev. C. H. Eichinger officiating. Burial will be in Forest cemetery by the Albaugh Co. Fall bearers will be George Forster, Ed Myers, Edwin Rausenberger, C. O. Leist, Ed. Stephens and Lewis Friend.

DISABLED VETS PLAN TO MEET

An effort to organize a chapter of the Disabled American Veterans of the World War will be made at a meeting at Memorial Hall Friday at 8 p. m. Earl H. Crowe, national organizer, and state junior vice-commander of the department of Ohio, will be in charge of the meeting.

He will speak in regard to compensation, disability allowance, hospitalization and regulation of the veterans' bureau pertaining to disabled men. He will also answer any questions.

The organization would be county-wide with between 125 and 150 men eligible for membership. Any man who served in the World War between April 6, 1917, and Nov. 11, 1918, who were wounded, gassed, injured or disabled while in the service or within a year after discharge is eligible. He need not be drawing compensation to be a member.

Any person seeking further information from Mr. Crowe can consult him at the American Hotel, room 3.

POMERENE HEADS OHIO DELEGATION

COLUMBUS, O., March 9.—Former U. S. Senator A. Lee Pomerene of Cleveland will be elected chairman of Ohio's delegation to the national Democratic convention at Chicago in June, political circles predicted today.

The "four four" which will guide the delegation's activities will also include Senator Robert J. Bulkley of Cleveland, State Chairman Henry Brunner of Mansfield and National Committeeman W. A. Julian of Cincinnati, according to reports here.

MERCURY AT THREE MARK HERE TODAY

Coldest Morning of Year Recorded Here as Temperature Makes Drop

SHIPS ARE TOSSED

No Change in Weather is Forecast

Circleville's official temperature fell to three degrees at 7 a. m. Wednesday, the coldest mark of the year. Monday's low mark was seven degrees and Tuesday's eight.

Temperatures plunged lower all over Ohio today, while weather observers searched without success for promise of a break in Ohio's sharpest and snappiest cold wave of the year.

NO SIGN OF BREAK

There is no sign of a change in the next 36 hours, federal weather observers disclose.

Toledo reports a temperature of four degrees at sunrise and Columbus was only one degree warmer. Cincinnati and Cleveland each reported six degrees above. In all cases the weather was the coldest of the winter. Pomeroy recorded a new low record at six above.

Columbus had its first ice skating as the chill increased yesterday. The Scioto river was frozen over for the first time since last winter.

NEW YORK, March 9.—Abatement of the violent storm which swept eastern states for three days today promised relief to many vessels drifting helplessly at sea at the mercy of furious gales.

On land, many communities in up-state New York, central Pennsylvania and the New England states especially, began to dig themselves out of their isolation due to the heavy snowdrifts which made roads impassable. Railroad and bus travel was halted in many areas.

BUSES MAROONED
Buses with 14 passengers, bound from Buffalo to Rochester, marooned through a whole night near Bergen, finally reached Batavia yesterday afternoon. In the morning, an airplane from Leroy flew out to Bergen and food and coffee for the hungry voyagers was dropped near them in sacks.

Wireless reports said the collier Bardolichen, with a crew of 34, was still rolling in the trough of the sea with broken rudder. The S. S. Adriatic stood by to transfer the men aboard as soon as this could be accomplished. However, her captain was afraid not to keep her running before the gale, as she easily might be capsized if once she lost steerage way.

But with her engines running, there was no chance to take to the life boats, and already the vessel, bound from Boston to Norfolk, was 370 miles from New York, although Monday night she was but 20 miles from Nantucket Light.

Other craft, including coast guard cutters, were also near the scene to aid the Bardolichen.

SHIPS REACH PORT
Some ships menaced by the storm reached port yesterday. Among them were the freighter Norwalk, and the liner Virginia, which went to Ludington, Mich., after being helpless in a rough sea for hours.

Coast guard headquarters were advised the motorship Tidewater picked up six men from the fisherman John and Mary abandoned 400 miles east of Cape Charles, Mass.

Airplanes and coastguard craft sought the barge Deepwater, which broke loose from the tug Mars. The latter badly damaged, entered Norfolk, Va.

The San Angelo, in flames, which however were reported under control, proceeded to the same harbor.

Feared lost, the fishing schooners Winifred M. and Four Sisters, with a crew of five and eight respectively, were still missing today.

JONES APPOINTED
Hindburn Jones, N. Scotist, has been appointed a member of the Pickaway-co soldiers' relief commission to succeed Jack Ryan, resigned. The appointment was made by Judge Joseph W. Adkins.

Trial Date Expected to Be March 28

Arthur Little, 39, colored alleged self-confessed conspirator in the burglary which resulted in the death of John Kidney last Dec. 10, Tuesday afternoon pleaded not guilty when arraigned before Judge Joseph W. Adkins. Although the date has not been definitely set it is expected the trial will begin March 28.

A special jury venire of 60 names was to be drawn Wednesday. Harry B. Weaver, his attorney, appeared in court with the defendant.

OTHERS SENTENCED

Three other conspirators in the crime, Walker Brown, Henry Loudermilk and Lacy Adams have been sentenced to die in the electric chair and are now inmates of the Ohio Penitentiary. A fourth, Franklin Smith, has been sentenced to life imprisonment after being granted mercy by a jury, and a fifth, John Hairston, is now on trial, his case being continued until next Monday on account of illness of his attorney, Charles Dresbach.

Little was arrested last Wednesday in Mt. Gilead N. C. and was returned here Saturday evening. He was the only one of the six who allegedly took part in the burglary and murder who 'skipped' after the crime.

SEYFERT NAMED
Max C. Seyfert Jr., was appointed to assist Prosecuting Attorney Emmitt L. Crist in handling the state's case against Little. Mr. Seyfert accepted the appointment. He was asked to conduct the defense of Walker Brown when the first assignment of attorneys in the cases was made but because of the untimely death of his brother, Paul Seyfert, which occurred in an automobile accident, the attorney asked to be excused.

DR. HOSLER'S MOTHER DIES

Amanda-Tp, Fairfield-Co Woman
Passes Away at Son's
Home in Ashville.

Mrs. Ida May Hosler, aged 69, died at the home of her son, Dr. R. S. Hosler of Ashville, Tuesday at 11 p. m. Complications caused her death. Mrs. Hosler had been undergoing treatment at the home of her son for the past seven weeks.

She was the wife of John Hosler of Amanda-twp, Fairfield-co.

Mrs. Hosler was a native of Clearcreek-twp, Fairfield-co, being born July 15, 1862, the daughter of Daniel and Jimima Dresbach Lutz.

Surviving besides the husband, are two sons, Fred of Amanda-twp, and Dr. R. S. Hosler at whose home she died, one daughter, Mrs. Jessie Bussert of Amanda-twp.

Funeral services will be Friday at 2:30 p. m. at the Hosler home in Amanda-twp with Rev. Brown officiating. Burial will be in Amanda-twp cemetery by E. F. Schlegel.

'Beer, Lower Tax' Beatty's Stand

EAST LIVERPOOL, O., Mar. 9.—On a '5 cent beer and 5 cent tax' platform, James C. Beatty, pottery jobber, today is expected to file petitions making him a candidate for the gubernatorial nomination for the sixth time.

Beatty, who joined the Republican party two years ago after three unsuccessful campaigns against Former Governor Vic Donahey for the Democratic nomination, announced he has obtained 1,460 signatures for his petitions.

Beatty proposes that the 5 cent tax on beer be collected at breweries. He would limit each county with less than 100,000 population to one brewery. He also advocates 20 per cent reduction in state and federal taxes.

Slain by "Ghost"

First thought to have been a victim of a heart attack, Roderick Roberts (above), Brooklyn, N. Y., dealer in surgical appliances, was found shot to death in his store. The wound was discovered by an undertaker. Despite the fact that the store is in a busy section and the murder was committed in early evening, no one saw the "ghost killer" leave.

DISABLED VETS PLAN TO MEET

An effort to organize a chapter of the Disabled American Veterans of the World War will be made at a meeting at Memorial Hall Friday at 8 p. m. Earl H. Crowe, national organizer, and state junior vice-commander of the department of Ohio, will be in charge of the meeting.

He will speak in regard to compensation, disability allowance, hospitalization and regulation of the veterans' bureau pertaining to disabled men. He will also answer any questions.

The organization would be county-wide with between 125 and 150 men eligible for membership. Any man who served in the World War between April 6, 1917, and Nov. 11, 1918, who were wounded, gassed, injured or disabled while in the service or within a year after discharge is eligible. He need not be drawing compensation to be a member.

Any person seeking further information from Mr. Crowe can consult him at the American Hotel, room 3.

POMERENE HEADS OHIO DELEGATION

COLUMBUS, O., March 9.—Former U. S. Senator Atlee Pomerene of Cleveland will be elected chairman of Ohio's delegation to the national Democratic convention at Chicago in June, politicians predicted today.

The "big four" which will guide the delegation's activities will also include Senator Robert J. Bulkley of Cleveland, State Chairman Henry Brunner of Mansfield and National Committeeman W. A. Julian of Cincinnati, according to reports here.

SHIPS ARE TOSSED

No Change in Weather is Forecast

Circleville's official temperature fell to three degrees at 7 a. m. Wednesday, the coldest mark of the year. Monday's low mark was seven degrees and Tuesday's eight.

Temperatures plunged lower all over Ohio today, while weather observers searched without success for promise of a break in Ohio's sharpest and snappiest cold wave of the year.

NO SIGN OF BREAK

There is no sign of a change in the next 36 hours, federal weather observers disclose.

Toledo reports a temperature of four degrees at sunrise and Columbus was only one degree warmer. Cincinnati and Cleveland each reported six degrees above. In all cases the weather was the coldest of the winter. Pomeroy recorded a new low record at six above.

Columbus had its first ice skating as the chill increased yesterday. The Scioto river was frozen over for the first time since last winter.

NEW YORK, March 9.—Abatement of the violent storm which swept eastern states for three days today promised relief to many vessels drifting helplessly at sea at the mercy of furious gales.

On land, many communities in up-state New York, central Pennsylvania and the New England states especially, began to dig themselves out of their isolation due to the heavy snowdrifts which made roads impassable. Railroad and bus travel was halted in many areas.

BUSES MAROONED

Buses with 14 passengers, bound from Buffalo to Rochester, marooned through a whole night near Bergen, finally reached Batavia yesterday afternoon. In the morning, an airplane from Leroy flew out to Bergen and food and coffee for the hungry voyagers was dropped near them in sacks.

Wireless reports said the collier Bardeleben, with a crew of 34, was still rolling in the trough of the sea with her broken rudder.

The S. S. Adriatic stood by to transfer the men aboard as soon as this could be accomplished. However, her captain was afraid not to keep her running before the gale, as she easily might be capsized if once she lost steerage way.

But with her engines running, there was no chance to take to the life boats, and already the vessel, bound from Boston to Norfolk, was 370 miles from New York, although Monday night she was but 20 miles from Nantucket Light.

Other craft, including coast guard cutters were also near the scene to aid the Bardeleben.

SHIPS REACH PORT

Some ships menaced by the storm reached port yesterday. Among them were the freighter Norwalk, and the liner Virginia, which went to Ludington, Mich., after being helpless in a rough sea for hours.

Coast guard headquarters were advised the motorship Tidewater picked up six men from the fisherman John and Mary abandoned 400 miles east of Cape Charles, Mass.

Airplanes and coastguard craft sought the barge Deepwater, which broke loose from the tug Mars. The latter badly damaged, entered Norfolk, Va.

The San Angelo, in flames, which however were reported under control, proceeded to the same harbor. Feared lost, the fishing schooner Winifred M. and Four Sisters, with a crew of five and eight respectively, were still missing today.

JONES APPOINTED

Hildeburn Jones, N. Scioto-st., has been appointed a member of the Pickaway-co soldiers' relief commission to succeed Jack Ryan, resigned. The appointment was made by Judge Joseph W. Adkins.

INTEREST IS HIGH IN TOURNNEY GAMES

DELAWARE, O., March 8.—Interest today turned to the battle royal carded for Friday night when North and East high school of Columbus clash in the semi-finals of the state basketball elimination tournaments. East was the only team to hand the North dribblers a defeat in the regular season.
Marion Harding will oppose Delaware in the second class "A" engagement. The winners will battle on Saturday for the district championship.
In the class "B" division Lancaster St. Mary's elimination favorites, have drawn Otterbein college. Granville will oppose Toledo; London will clash with Plumwood; and Marysville will tackle Orange in the other Friday night engagements.
Semi-finals start Saturday at 2 p. m. with the championship occurring at 8 p. m.

O'NEIL IS NAMED MUDHENS ASSISTANT

NEW ORLEANS, La. March 9.—The re-organization of the Toledo Mudhens, farm of the Cleveland Indians, took a leap ahead today with the appointment of Steve O'Neil, old-time Cleveland catcher, as coach of the American Association nine.
O'Neil came to the spring camp as guest coach of both the Mudhens and Indians. Besides Cleveland, he spent his major league career with the Yankees and Red Sox. He managed Toronto of the International league for the past three years.

BEVO ONLY HOLDOUT

HOUSTON, Texas, March 9.—"Bevo" Lebourveau, outfielder, was the only hold-out of the Columbus Red Birds today as they resumed activities at their spring training camp here. Tuesday's practice was washed out by a heavy rain but the gloom of Manager Harry "Nemo" Leibold was eased when Red Rollings, infielder, appeared with a signed contract.

"THAT LITTLE GAME" The "Wagon" Below

the police know, the car sties of the kidnapers or the kidnapers themselves may have visited and resided the Lindberghs in a series of conferences.
There was much mysterious talk to the Lindberghs in the library where campaign councils have been held for into the night and beyond.
The curtains on the automobiles have been drawn taut and the identity of the visitors for the most part, has been shrouded in mystery.
There was at least one significant departure.
Colonel Henry Breckinridge, generally conceded to be the Lindbergh aide-de-camp, who would take the most active part in conducting negotiations with the enemy, left the estate for several hours.
A request was issued to police and others that they refrain from following the automobile in which he rode.

RUMOR MEETING
The event produced the report that Colonel Breckinridge had gone to a board meeting with the agents of the kidnapers regarding the return of the baby.
Possible substantiation of the report that two ransom letters had been received on Sunday from the kidnapers with specific instructions as to the means of recovering the baby was seen in the fact that Colonel Lindbergh did not officially deny the report.
Also by inference, a high police official admitted the presence of the two letters.
"Things have looked more hopeful for the baby's return in the past few days since the receipt of those two letters," he said.
Among the arrivals and departures at the estate were two large limousines with New York licenses, which sped over the rutty road from New York at high speed. There were four men in one car and the other only the chauffeur could be seen, the frost on the window panes obscured the occupants in the rear.
CARRIES NEGROES
Another machine carried passengers who were identified by the trooper at the gate as William Bradley, Kansas City lawyer, and two negro women.
Major Schoeffel said the trio supplied some information to the Lindbergh council but that they were denied an interview with Colonel Lindbergh in person. The information they gave was undisclosed.
"Salvy" Spitalo and his henchman, Irving Bitz, the two underworld characters appointed by the Lindberghs as go-betweens in possible dealings with the kidnapers, were said to have reported several times to the Colonel.
Whether or not these purported communications were favorable or unfavorable was not learned.
Spitalo returned home for about an hour after being absent all night another of his mysterious disappearances. He left with several men waiting for him in an automobile.
MEETS GANGSTERS
Morris Rosner, former government investigator, who has been secretly working for the Lindberghs in the kidnaping case, conferred with Spitalo and Bitz.
From the purely police angle, developments in the case centered about the continued detention of Henry "Red" Johnson, sailor son of Betty Gow, the Lindbergh nurse; the story told by a toll collector of seeing two men, a woman and a baby, in a coupe, a mobile on the night of the kidnaping; and in the attempts to trace the home-made ladder which the abductors used to climb to the second story nursery.
IDENTIFY WOOD
Squire Johnson, inspector of the New Jersey state department of institutions, said that word of the ladder which the kidnapers left behind, was similar to lumber used in construction at the state village for epileptics, near Skillman, N. J. The village is only four miles from Hopewell.

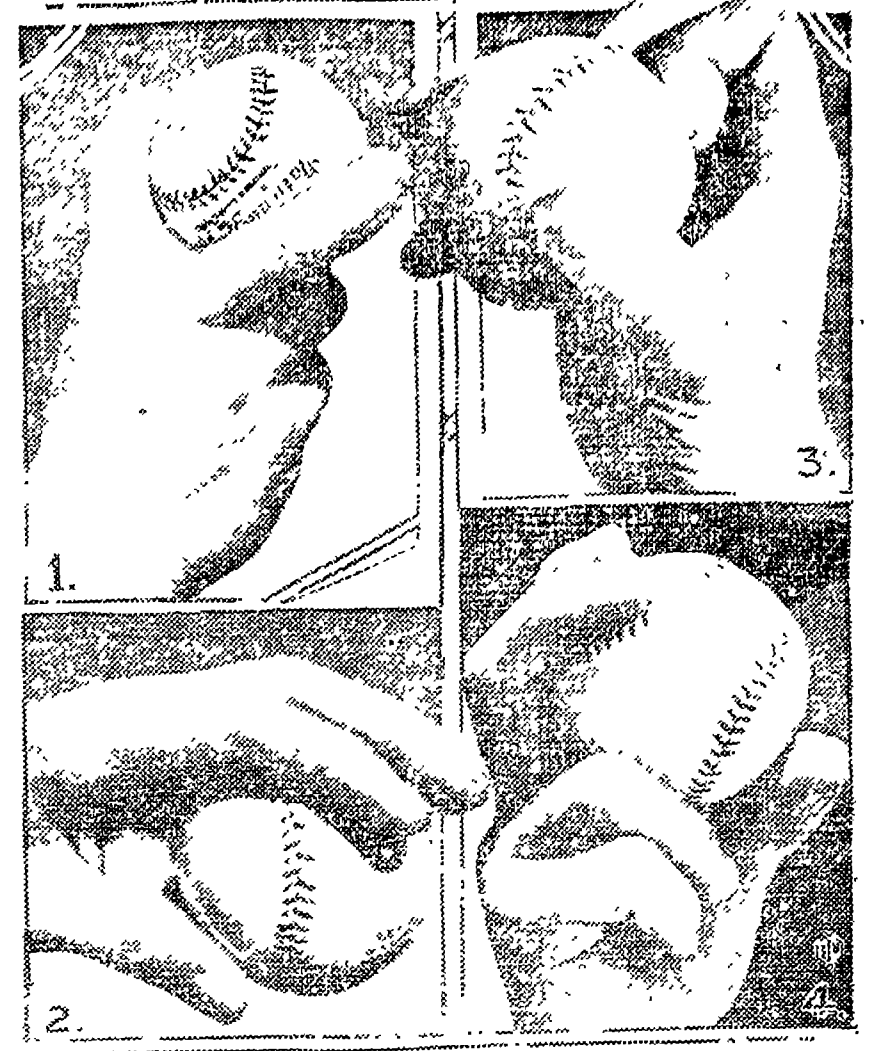

Did you ever stop to think
EDSON R. WAITE
Shawnee, Okla.

Floyd B. Rigdon, editor and publisher of the Maud, Okla., Daily Enterprise, says:
"A town has no place for the knocker. A knocker is hardly a man without a country, but his country, his town, or his community has little use for him.
"There are all kinds of knockers—as many as there are kinds of people. The thriving city is filled with boosters. Boosters who so outnumber the knockers that their knocking does not count for much.
"We like the boosters. Sometimes they are super-enthusiastic, or, rather, over-enthusiastic is the better word. But they are always enthusiastic for their home town or the cause in which they are interested, and they are never to be found hanging around someone's knocking this and knocking that. No, a booster is not built that way.
"We must have these boosters, they are just as necessary to the successful enterprise as daylight is to the earth.
"Knockers are found everywhere just the same as the boosters. Let us all be thankful for it, the boosters are always far away in the lead, usually the knockers can be found in the rear, where it is safer for them, perhaps. They flock together, but even then they fail to make a crowd, as a rule.
"But the greatest booster is he who converts the knocker into a booster—makes him see the light!—so that both play the game as team-mates ever after.

CLEVELAND AND COLUMBUS FOUND STABLE IN INDUSTRY

COLUMBUS, O.,—Industrial and business areas have shown the greatest stability in Ohio since 1913, it is reported by the bureau of business research, Ohio State University. The greatest variation in factory work shown in the CANTON and AKRON areas.
Other facts developed by the survey, reported by H. G. Brunson, of the bureau staff, are "the remarkable similarity of movement of payrolls in the chief industrial areas of Ohio in the rapid growth of the world war and the fact that even at the low point of 1921 payrolls totals were two and a half times as great as in 1914, and nearly a third greater than the total at the previous low in 1920."
Payrolls in Ohio's manufacturing industry in 1920, Brunson found, the total fell off sharply 45 per cent in 1921, but the recovery in the next few years was rapid.
The 1920 rise brought manufacturing payrolls totals to a new record high in these counties: HAMILTON, LUCAS, MONTGOMERY and FRANKLIN. Except for Lucas co., these four areas were the least affected by the 1931 decline. All four showed less than a 30 per cent loss from their 1920 record, high, while declines of from 34 to 45 per cent were registered in the other counties. Movement in non-manufacturing payrolls was less uniform, but the decreases were less severe in most cases than in manufacturing.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Lavin' to Go
If you feel sour and sunk and the world feels lumpy, don't swallow a lot of salts, laxatives, water, oil, brine, candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.
For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is a liver full of bile. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.
If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, often often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.
It takes three good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get those two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.
But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Rent a substitute 25c at all stores. © 1931 C. M. Co.

Mack Confident Of 1932 Honors

BY GEORGE BARRY.

FORT MYERS, March 9.—Manager Connie Mack of the Philadelphia Athletics will try to win the American League pennant again this year with just about the same ball club as copped the flag with such nonchalant ease in 1931.

He is grooming some promising youngsters at the training camp here but, unless the aging veterans slip badly, the rookies will experience a difficult time, crashing the lineup.

The A's were a fine ball club last season even though they dropped the world series to the St. Louis Cardinals. The feeling here is that the defeat in the series has not robbed them of their self-confidence or morale. They will be "tough" again in 1932.

DEPEND ON ACES

What the A's accomplish during the coming season will depend a great deal on the showing of Mack's pitching aces—Grove, Earnshaw, Walberg. This trio won an aggregate of 72 games last season and lost 23. If they can hold up even fairly well the A's will be hard to beat out of another pennant.

Eddie Collins, Mack's efficient coach, regarded the A's with an optimistic eye as they cavorted around the ball field here today. They have looked good in spring games against the Cardinals and, to all appearances, haven't lost their punch. Discussing the club, Collins said:

"Mickey Cochrane looks just as good as I ever saw him. He is a great catcher and will do the bulk of our backstopping again this year. John Heving will give him lots of help and Ed. Madjeski, a recruit who was with Harrisburg last year, stands a good chance of sticking as third string catcher."

Collins thinks the A's pitching will be first class again this season. In addition to Grove, Earnshaw and Walberg, there is Rommel and Mahaffey, both very good. Lew Krausse, 19-year-old Media, Pa., boy whom Mack likes a great deal, probably will stick. Joe Bowman, a rookie up from Portland, is trying hard. Collins thinks Merritt Cain "looks good."

INFIELD READY

The infield probably will line up as it did in the world series—Fosx at first, Bishop at second, Williams at short and Dykes at third. Oscar Roettger has been practising a good deal at first with Fosx over at third—a good idea in case any shifts are necessary in the infield.

Manager Mack and Coach Collins have been greatly impressed by the work of Outfielder Ed Coleman, up from Portland. In the first exhibition game of the season against the Cardinals, Coleman got four hits in five times up. Another outfielder who may stick is Roger Cramer, a lanky youth who makes his home in Manahawkin, N. J., and who is a speedster in the outer garden.

O'NEIL IS NAMED MUDHEN ASSISTANT

NEW ORLEANS, La., March 9.—The re-organization of the Toledo Mudhens, farm of the Cleveland Indians, took a leap ahead today with the appointment of Steve O'Neil, old-time Cleveland catcher, as coach of the American Association nine.

O'Neil came to the spring camp as guest coach of both the Mudhens and Indians. Besides Cleveland, he spent his major league career with the Yankees and Red Sox. He managed Toronto of the International league for the past three years.

Tuesday's practice was washed out by a heavy rain but the gloom of Manager Harry "Nemo" Leibold was eased when Red Rollings, infielder, appeared with a signed contract.

FARM BD. WHEAT GIVEN RED CROSS

WASHINGTON, March 9.—The business of distributing some 40,000,000 bushels of farm board wheat to the nation's hungry today was in the hands of the American Red Cross.

President Hoover signed the congressional resolution directing such a disposition of the huge surplus following a conference with Attorney General Mitchell in the course of which he received an informal opinion that no outlay of federal money was contemplated in the measure.

Originally, this wheat was purchased by the farm board in an effort to hold up the market. It was brought in at prices ranging from $1.25 to between 80 and 90 cents a bushel. Wheat now is selling around 80.

John Barton Payne, chairman of the Red Cross, apparently was somewhat dubious about the Lathrop amendment which provides that flour milled out of the wheat "may" be baked into bread and distributed free in cities of 25,000 population and more. Baking costs shall not come out of the wheat, says the amendment, and in connection with other sections of the resolution it is stipulated that no expense be borne by the government.

Mr. Hoover is in the position of somewhat reversing himself on policy in singling the act. Last year during the drought, he successfully opposed food distribution at government expense. No further expense will be involved, but the wheat already has cost the government considerable money.

CANDIDATE FORCED TO QUIT CONTEST

CHICAGO, March 9.—Thomas J. Ryan, kidnaped and forced to withdraw as a candidate for Demland, spent his major league career with the Yankees and Red Sox. He managed Toronto of the International league for the past three years.

Ryan was abducted by three men who appeared at his home and represented themselves as policemen. They forced him to accompany them in a large car.

Ryan told police today that he was taken to Cicero and held prisoner until he agreed to sign his withdrawal. He was not harmed, he said.

The spectacle of Governor Roosevelt balancing a water keg on one shoulder and beer keg on the other promises to impress the Democratic convention next year in two days.

the police know, the emissaries of the kidnapers or the kidnapers themselves may have visited and revisited the Lindberghs in a series of conferences.

There was much mysterious traffic to the Lindbergh doorstep and beyond into the library where campaign councils have been held far into the night and beyond.

The curtains on the automobiles have been drawn taut and the identity of the visitors, for the most part, has been shrouded in conjecture.

There was at least one significant departure. Colonel Henry Breckinridge, generally conceded to be the Lindbergh aide-de-camp, who would take the most active part in conducting negotiations with the enemy, left the estate for several hours.

A request was issued to police and others that they refrain from following the automobile in which he rode.

RUMOR MEETING

The event produced the report that Colonel Breckinridge had gone to a board meeting with the agents of the kidnapers regarding the return of the baby.

Possible substantiation of the report that two ransom letters had been received on Sunday from the kidnapers with specific instructions as to the means of recovering the baby was seen in the fact that Colonel Lindbergh did not officially deny the report.

Also, by inference, a high police official admitted the presence of the two letters.

"Things have looked more hopeful for the baby's return in the past few days since the receipt of those two letters," he said.

Among the arrivals and departures at the estate were two large limousines with New York licenses, which sped over the rutty road from New York at high speed. There were four men in one car in the other only the chauffeur could be seen, the frost on the window panes obscured the occupants in the rear.

CARRIES NEGROES

Another machine carried passengers who were identified by the trooper at the gate as William Bradley, Kansas City lawyer, and two negro women.

Major Schoeffel said the trio supplied some information to the Lindbergh council but that they were denied an interview with Colonel Lindbergh in person. The information they gave was undisclosed.

"Salvy" Spitalo and his henchman, Irving Bitz, the two underworld characters appointed by the Lindberghs as go-betweens in possible dealings with the kidnapers, were said to have reported several times to the Colonel.

Whether or not these purported communications were favorable or unfavorable was not learned. Spitalo returned home for about an hour after being absent all night another of his mysterious disappearances. He left with several men waiting for him in an automobile.

MEETS GANGSTERS

Morris Rosner, former government investigator, who has been secretly working for the Lindberghs in the kidnaping case, conferred with Spitalo and Bitz.

From the purely police angle, developments in the case centered about the continued detention of Henry "Red" Johnson, sailor suitor of Betty Gow, the Lindbergh nurse; the story told by a toll collector of seeing two men, a woman and a baby in a coupe automobile on the night of the kidnaping; and in the attempts to trace the home-made ladder which the abductors used to climb to the second story nursery.

IDENTIFY WOOD

Squire Johnson, inspector of the New Jersey state department of institutions, said that wood of the ladder which the kidnapers left behind was similar to lumber used in construction at the state village for epileptics, near Skillman, N. J. The village is only four miles from Hopewell.

When the work was finished on the building some of the lumber remaining was sold and taken away by laborers, many of whom belonged to a colony of half-breed Indians in the vicinity of Hopewell.

State troopers and detectives twice visited the epileptic village and former workmen there were questioned.

In New Heaven, Conn., Tony Meslo, building contractor, was held under $25,000 bail on a technical charge of idleness for questioning in connection with the Lindbergh baby kidnaping.

Similarity has been by authorities in a letter received last Thursday by Mrs. Lindbergh and one received in 1929 by her youngest sister, Miss Constance Morrow, both demanding $50,000.

EDSON R. WAITE
Shawnee, Okla.

Floyd B. Rigdon, editor and publisher of the Maud, Okla., Daily Enterprise, says:

"A town has no place for the knocker; a knocker is hardly a man without a country, but his country, his town, or his community has little use for him."

"There are all kinds of knockers—as many as there are kinds of people. The thriving city is filled with boosters! Boosters who so outnumber the knockers that their knocking does not count for much."

"We like the boosters. Sometimes they are super-enthusiastic, or, rather, over-enthusiastic is the better word. But they are always enthusiastic for their home town or the cause in which they are interested, and they are never to be found hanging around somewhere knocking this and knocking that. No, a booster is not built that way."

"We must have these boosters; they are just as necessary to the successful enterprise as daylight is to the earth."

"Knockers are found everywhere just the same as the boosters, but let us all be thankful for it, the boosters are always far away in the lead; usually the knockers can be found in the rear, where it is safer for them, perhaps. They flock together, but even then they fail to make a crowd, as a rule."

"But the greatest booster is he who converts the knocker into a booger—'makes him see the light'—so that both play the game as team-mates ever after."

"A town has no place for the knocker—it matters not whether he knocks the town, its enterprises or its citizens. Show us a man who knows his fellow-citizens and we will show you the poorest excuse for a citizen extant."

Odds and Ends

At that the novel with illustrations from the Hollywood pictorialization is an improvement over that of 20 years ago whose illustrations had nothing to do with the text.

Business ought to consult that British specialist on eliminating squeaks and groans in haunted houses.

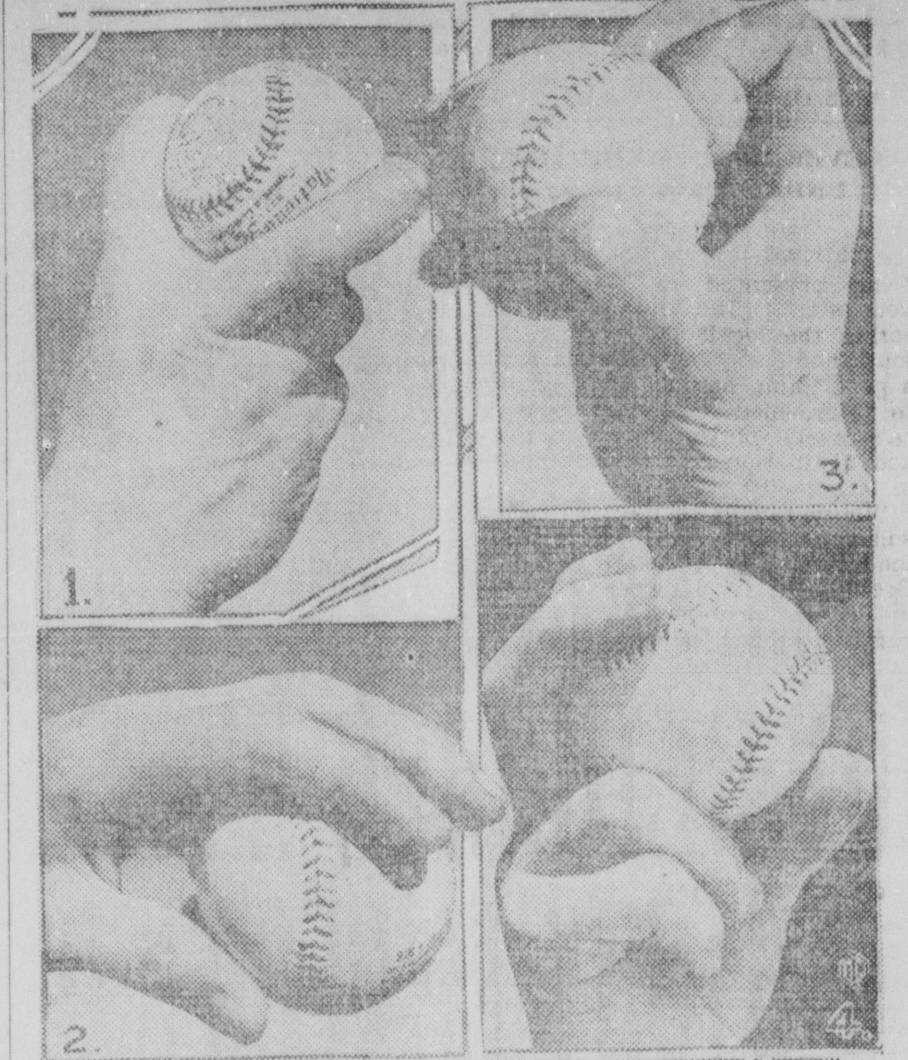

"I can only think up two lines of words," said the tired song writer. "Guess I'll have to make it a spiritual."

With the Democrats in control of the house and all of the gubernatorial offices recently filled, the outlook is that it will take the Republican party more than 30 days to get back to normal.

"Movie exhibitors in the Southwest," says Variety, "are being victimized by an impostor who claims to be George Arliss touring the small towns in personal appearances." Who is it—Disraeli?

Some self-made men leave parts of the job unfinished. Making it easier to fly doesn't make it softer to fall.

Here's How They Hold 'Em

Look these pictures over closely, you embryo big league twirlers, and maybe they'll help you get that old ball over the plate. The Giants' pitching staff demonstrated their favorite grips for our photographer and here we show them to you. (1) Roy Parmelee's delivery of his "fork" ball. (2) How Carl Hubbell holds his "screw" ball. (3) Freddy Fitzsimon's knuckle ball and (4) Joe Genewich's grip for his curve.

CLEVELAND AND COLUMBUS FOUND STABLE IN INDUSTRY

COLUMBUS, O., — Industrial payrolls in the CLEVELAND and COLUMBUS areas have showed the greatest stability in Ohio since 1913, it is reported by the bureau of business research, Ohio State University. Similarly, the study revealed, the greatest variation in totals was shown in the CANTON and AKRON areas.

Other facts developed by the survey, reported by H. G. Brunsmann, of the bureau staff, are the remarkable similarity of movement of payrolls in the chief industrial areas of Ohio, the rapid growth of Ohio industry since the outbreak of the world war, and the fact that even at the low point of 1931 payrolls totals were two and a half times as great as in 1914, and nearly a third greater than the total at the previous low in 1921.

Payrolls in Ohio's manufacturing industries in 1920, Brunsmann found, the total fell off sharply 45 per cent in 1921, but the recovery in the next few years was rapid.

The 1920 rise brought manufacturing payrolls totals to a new record high in these counties: HAMILTON, LUCAS, MONTGOMERY and FRANKLIN. Except for Lucas co, these four areas were the least affected by the 1931 decline. All four showed less than a 30 per cent loss from their 1929 record, high, while declines of from 34 to 45 per cent were registered in the other counties. Movement in non-manufacturing payrolls was less uniform, but the decreases were less severe in most cases than in manufacturing.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE — WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Karin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, stimulants, laxatives or anything else that will make you feel suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get those two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, having when it comes to making the bile flow freely. But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resist a substitute. 25c at all stores. © 1931 C. M. Co.

TO EVER BOY AND GIRL

UNDER 14 YEARS OF AGE

At last a chance to join the annual national marble tournament is being presented to Circleville's youngsters. The Herald is sponsoring the locals of this gigantic joust, and every boy who can shoot a good game has an equal chance to be crowned the king of America's marble-players and win fame and distinction as any other boy in larger city.

Whoever wins in the local rings will compete in large games, and the district champion will travel to Ocean City, N. J., where the victor will be presented to America, and be awarded the claims that accompany the title of king.

TWO-TO-ONE TWO-TO-ONE TWO-TO-ONE TWO-TO-ONE TWO-TO-ONE TWO-TO-ONE

TWO-TO-ONE LEAVENING

TAKES CARE OF ITSELF

Handle dough your own way... Rumford rises the right amount at the right time!

RUMFORD leavens twice. Each leavening makes dough or batter rise just the right amount at the right time to assure perfect results.

Rumford starts its work when you mix it. You can tell by the lightness of Rumford dough or batter. When you put it in the oven it is two-thirds leavened. The remaining one-third takes place in the heat of the oven. That's why Rumford is called the Two-to-One Leavener and that's why Rumford leavening is always perfect.

You get Two-to-One leavening only with a pure all-phosphate powder. The 2% to 18% of phosphate added to some powders does not make them ALL-PHOSPHATE powders nor assure Two-to-One leavening. The phosphate content of Rumford is 100%. That makes the big difference.

And in addition to its leavening power the phosphate in Rumford adds real food value to cakes and hot breads, supplying calcium valuable in building strong bones and teeth. FOR BETTER RESULTS USE—

Forgotten Races
RACES have left their heraldic devices, so to speak, upon the walls of the past in every country of the earth, and then passed out of existence and often out of knowledge. No anthropological or archaeological evidences of the earliest existence of mankind upon the planet have brought conviction as to the origin of man, in respect either to place or manner.
The theory of evolution serves a useful purpose and finds all the support necessary to make it a working hypothesis in explaining how mankind may have come up from a unicellular organism. Its best informed advocates are the most reluctant to consider it as being as explicit as the stages in the house that Jack built. In the myriad evolutions and devaluations of mankind upon the earth—processes governed not a little by differences and changes in climate—it would be strange if the laboratory of nature had turned out but one model of man, or man of a single determinate biological lineage.
The matter of fixing on the cradle of the race has long troubled science, and, due to recent expeditions, is of unusual speculative interest at this time. As long as it remains a mystery, America has the right to put forward its claims to habitability in eras of remote antiquity, even if the cradle may not be found in this hemisphere. That cradle has been upset time and again by fresh discoveries of man-made relics.
Evidences of a race older than the Indians have been found in the United States and the civilization of the basket weavers of the Southwest is said to be 4000 years old. Here in America the age of earliest man is in process of being pushed back not only by centuries but by aeons.

Blind
MORE than 2,000 industrial workers lose the sight of one or both eyes and 900,000 more suffer minor injuries to the eyes every year. The annual cost of these injuries, including wage loss, medical expenses and compensation awards, is estimated at $50,000,000, and this is but a fraction of the economic to the nation.
These figures are especially disconcerting in the light of the accident prevention campaign that has been carried on for years in factories and mines at great cost to industry and the government.
They make one wonder whether it is not all in vain.
But progress has been made.
Safety devices have reduced the number of industrial accidents to but a fraction of the number when accident prevention and safety-first were unheard of.
It is true, however, that more progress has been made in protecting lives, arms, legs and hands than in protecting eyes for the reason that it is more difficult to protect the eyes. There is also a tendency among factory workers to be less careful of their eyes because safety usually involves the wearing of goggles and goggles are anything but comfortable. Employers have reported instances where dismissals were necessary to enforce the rules for wearing goggles.
Industrial safety rules and precautions are not for the protection of the worker alone. They protect his family, his employer and society. That is why society is vitally interested in their efficiency and enforcement.

Scientific Explorer
ADMIRAL RICHARD E. BYRD is a born explorer, but he is more than that. As an explorer his interest is principally scientific. Strange places are more than just strange places to him.
When Byrd flew over the poles he was not stung by flying, but making a scientific study of the great wastes at the top and the bottom of this sphere. He wanted to know their potential value to humanity, the connection between arctic and antarctic cold and atmospheric conditions in the other zones, and the possibility for air routes between the continents.
His present plans for returning to Antarctica are inspired by the desire to place more in its proper place upon the map of the known world and to determine whether it is a continent. He would map, probe and learn.
In the history of exploration there have been many motives to urge men to reach remote places.
Explorers have gone in search of new and better trade routes, treasure, new colonies or merely for the honor of being the first to discover the unknown. This age has produced a new type in the form of the scientific explorer of which Admiral Byrd is the famous.
There are still vast blank spaces on the map of the world but thanks to cartographers of Byrd's type they are rapidly shrinking. It has taken man many times six days to bring his globe to its present stage of completion.

"The GAY BANDIT of the BORDER" by TOM GILL

SYNOPSIS

Young and handsome Ted Radcliffe arrives at Verdi, a Mexican border town, as the search for "El Coyote," the notorious masked bandit, is at its height. "El Coyote" avenges the outrages perpetrated by the wealthy and powerful Paco Morales against the peons. Ted learns from Bob Harkness, his late father's friend, that Morales was responsible for Radcliffe Senior's failure, but Bob urges him not to make an enemy of Morales as he has other plans. Ted is attracted to Morales' beautiful niece, Adela. "El Coyote" sends his lieutenant to urge the ranchers to join him in overthrowing Morales. Jito, Morales' ward, warns him he will lose power unless "El Coyote" is killed. At Morales' fiesta, Ted bluntly asks his host if he benefited by his father's ruin. Morales replies that Ted's father was his friend. Jito and an Indian finish a horse race together, but Morales awards the decision to his ward.

CHAPTER XVII

Jito had reined in his horse before the judges' stand, his black eyes burning with the exultation of the race. His lips were still parted with the snarl of contest, and his great chest rose and fell. Jito, it was evident, was very happy. It was as if he said: "Look, I am Jito. I conquer in all things." And knotted in his wet scarf was the rose of Adela. Silently Radcliffe watched him. The young Mexican seemed a very gallant figure there in the evening sunlight, his thick hair tossed, shirt open, sitting his horse as if a very part of the animal. And, catching Ted's glance, Don Bob whispered: "An untamed centaur of the desert. But see his eyes as he looks up at Adela."

They were the eyes of a loyal dog, a lover's eyes, too, but in their glance was something of the wildness of an untamed and untamable thing. Leaning over the railing, Adela extended her hand, and Jito raised it to his lips. "A los pies de tu." He murmured the old courtly Spanish phrase, and his voice was the voice of one speaking to some holy being. A little throb of pain caught Radcliffe as he watched. Children of the desert, those two, sharing a world where he yet walked an alien. Then he smiled and, reaching down, grasped Jito's hand.

"Well done," he said. "You are a true brother of the North Wind." Jito's delighted smile grew broader. "A thousand thanks to the big Americano." He felt the strength of Radcliffe's grasp and nodded in approval as he sat his horse carelessly, while about him clustered his vaqueros. Slowly Jito's own huge fingers tightened, and Radcliffe tried to straighten, but the Mexican's hand held his own now with a steel clasp. Again Jito's eyes were gleaming.

"Men say," he smiled lazily up, "that the big Americano is a great wrestler, that he has a hug like the mountain grizzly. It would be good sometime to see which of us should first taste the desert's dust in such a contest." Ted felt the girl's eyes upon him. He forced his lips to smile. "Whenever you like, Jito mio," he replied easily.

"Bueno. Let it be now, then. Let us see if there is one on the border stronger than Jito."

Morales interposed with a frown. "Silence. This gentleman is our guest." He turned to Ted. "Jito has the manners of a goat. Success to him is like strong drink. You will forgive him?"

Again Jito smiled. "But surely so strong a man must be glad to test his strength."

Ted was neither looking at Morales nor listening to the other's words. That iron grip from below was pulling him still lower over the rail. Some answerine snarl kindled Radcliffe, darting in, caught Jito, already off balance, and with a quick thrust and jerk, threw him sprawling.

within him. It was as if two naked souls had recognized beyond all uncertainty the presence of an enemy. Suddenly hot blood surged to his head as he stood there looking down at the Mexican's challenging eyes. Placing his free hand on the rail, he vaulted quickly over and stood beside Jito's horse. Then without effort, he reached up, wound his arm about the Mexican's waist and pulled him slowly from the saddle. They stood face to face now, in the center of that crowded, hushed circle, directly beneath the little group in the stand. Alert, poised, holding each other's eyes, still smiling warily. As the Mexican stepped back, Ted threw his coat aside.

"Ready?" he asked. Jito raised his black eyes. "Si, always ready."

They swung together with a thud of straining flesh, bent heads pressed down against each other's shoulder, sinewy arms moving slowly up and down, seeking some point of weakness. Like great statues they bulked against the sunset, tense, waiting, almost motionless. Without warning Jito lunged, throwing the weight of his body against Radcliffe, and circling his waist with both arms, lifted his adversary bodily into the air. Ted's own arms locked about the Mexican's neck, and his muscles grew into steel bands as he forced all his strength into that punishing, killing neck-hold. The cords on Jito's throat stood out, his breath whistled. Mercilessly the hold tightened as Ted slipped his right hand forward, locking his arms together.

Like a cat Jito jerked backward, turning as he fell, striving to end that killing hold, hoping to drive Ted's body into the earth beneath him. As they swayed backward Radcliffe, releasing the Mexican, leaped aside, then, darting in, caught Jito, already off balance, and with a quick thrust and a jerk, threw him sprawling on his back. A clean fall. From Morales's herdsmen came a hiss of dismayed surprise as they saw their chieftain in the dust.

Ted stepped forward and, grasping Jito's hand, raised him to his feet. For a moment the young Mexican looked uncertainly at his antagonist. Then he laughed and fell tenderly

Forgotten Races

RACES have left their heraldic devices, so to speak, upon the walls of the past in every country of the earth, and then passed out of existence and often out of knowledge. No anthropological or archaeological evidences of the earliest existence of mankind upon the planet have brought conviction as to the origin of man, in respect either to place or manner.

The theory of evolution serves a useful purpose and finds all the support necessary to make it a working hypothesis in explaining how mankind may have come up from a unicellular organism. Its best informed advocates are the most reluctant to consider it as being as explicit as the stages in the house that Jack built. In the myriad evolutions and devaluations of mankind upon the earth—processes governed not a little by differences and changes in climate—it would be strange if the laboratory of nature had turned out but one model of man, or man of a single determinate biological lineage. This science admits.

The matter of fixing on the cradle of the race has long troubled science, and, due to recent expeditions, is of unusual speculative interest at this time. As long as it still remains a mystery, America has the right to put forward its claims to habitability in eras of remote antiquity, even if the cradle may not be found in this hemisphere. That cradle has been upset time and again by fresh discoveries of man-made relics.

Evidences of a race older than the Indians have been found in the United States and the civilization of the basket weavers of the Southwest is said to be 4000 years old. Here in America the age of earliest man is in process of being pushed back not only by centuries but by aeons.

Blind

MORE than 2,000 industrial workers lose the sight of one or both eyes and 300,000 more suffer minor injuries to the eyes every year. The annual cost of these injuries, including wage loss, medical expenses and compensation awards, is estimated at $50,000,000, and this is but a fraction of the economic to the nation.

These figures are especially disconcerting in the light of the accident prevention campaign that has been carried on for years in factories and mines at great cost to industry and the government. They make one wonder whether it is all in vain.

But progress has been made. Safety devices have reduced the number of industrial accidents to but a fraction of the number when accident prevention and safety-first were unheard of.

It is true, however, that more progress has been made in protecting lives, arms, legs and hands than in protecting eyes for the reason that it is more difficult to protect the eyes. There is also a tendency among factory workers to be less careful of their eyes because safety usually involves the wearing of goggles and goggles are anything but comfortable. Employers have reported instances where dismissals were necessary to enforce the rules for wearing goggles.

Industrial safety rules and precautions are not for the protection of the worker alone. They protect his family, his employer and society. That is why society is vitally interested in their efficiency and enforcement.

Scientific Explorer

ADMIRAL RICHARD E. BYRD is a born explorer, but he is more than that. As an explorer his interest is principally scientific. Strange places are more than just strange places to him.

When Byrd flew over the poles he was not stung flying, but making a scientific study of the great wastes at the top and the bottom of this sphere. He wanted to know their potential value to humanity, the connection between arctic and antarctic cold and atmospheric conditions in the other zones, and the possibility for air routes between the continents.

His present plans for returning to Antarctica are inspired by the desire to place more of its vast expanse upon the map of the known world and to determine whether it is a continent. He would map, probe and learn.

In the history of exploration there have been many motives to urge men to reach remote places. Explorers have gone in search of new and better trade routes, treasure, new colonies or merely for the honor of being the first to discover the unknown. This age has produced a new type in the form of the scientific explorer of which Admiral Byrd is the famous.

There are still vast blank spaces on the map of the world but thanks to cartographers of Byrd's type they are rapidly shrinking. It has taken man many times six days to bring his globe to its present stage of completion.

"Yes, sometime it would be interesting to look us both in the same room and see which of us would unlock the door. That would be worth while, eh, amigo mio?"

Radcliffe turned away. "It might have possibilities, Jito. Sometime when we're not too busy. But not tonight."

Like truant schoolboys, both men watched Adela and Don Bob approach. Something sparkled in the girl's eyes that might have been anger or amusement. Don Bob was trying not to smile. "I am sure my uncle's peons thank you for a pleasant afternoon," came the quiet voice of Adela. "Are there any other little games you and Jito would like to play before we go?"

Jito looked once into the girl's eyes, then turned like a beaten dog. Bob's smile broadened. Ted gazed down at his rumpled, desert-stained clothes, and suddenly it came over him that he had played the part of a fool before this calm-eyed girl. His face flushed and he looked for his fellow culprit, but Jito had disappeared. Rucfully Ted picked up his coat.

"I'm sorry. I'm whatever kind of imbecile you want to call me, but please don't say me outright."

In silence they walked toward the roadster and once, looking quickly up, Ted surprised the faintest smile on the girl's face. "Thank God for that," he said. "I've been afraid you were thinking of cutting me to five dances tonight." She shook her head. "I shouldn't dare. Instead I'll probably have to dance all evening with you rather than trust you for a minute out of my sight. You might be overcome with desire to pitch quoits with the stable boy or—"

"Or challenge the tenor drummer to six fast rounds," suggested Ted. Then he added: "Really, I'm sorry. It all came so suddenly. He was so confident and so sure. And the next minute we were at it and now I'm all sackcloth and ashes."

Sanitarium Best Place to Start Tuberculosis Cure

While It Is Not Necessary to Remain There Long, Patients Learn How to Treat Themselves and To Avoid Danger of Infecting Others.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D. United States Senator from New York. Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

It is gratifying to learn that deaths from tuberculosis have decreased, but even now we meet too many cases. To permit one to remain untreated is to make it a constant source of danger to all.

Dr. Copeland

The best advice to give a patient with tuberculosis is for him to go for treatment to the nearest tuberculosis sanitarium. There he is educated in the knowledge essential for the cure and cure of this disease.

After having gone to a sanitarium for a temporary stay, the sensible patient comes to regret he cannot remain longer. The surroundings, atmosphere and people with whom he comes in contact are found to be delightful. Rather than being a necessary evil, the experience has proved to many a pleasant one.

Of course it is natural to object strenuously to going away from home. It is hard to understand why it is better to go to a sanitarium, or to imagine what can be done at a sanitarium that cannot be done at home.

It is true that the home can be just as comfortable, if not more so than any sanitarium in the land. Comfort, however, is not the really essential thing. In a sanitarium the routine of the day is planned to make the life of the patient easy and at the same time of great physical benefit. There the patient is in contact with others striving for the same object, while at home the patient is with people who are well, and who may not grasp all the small, yet important, problems of the invalid.

The danger of infecting others does not exist in the sanitarium. If only for this reason, the patient with tuberculosis should seriously consider the wisdom of going to a place built expressly for the care of persons with this disease. The great benefits derived from treatment in these institutions can not be over-estimated. Undoubtedly if all infected persons would seek relief at sanitariums, the percentage of tuberculosis in the world would greatly decrease.

There are many sanitariums throughout the country which are free. These are supported by endowments. Others are under the supervision of the State. Remember that a visit to a sanitarium is not a life sentence. It is the beginning of the cure of a disease that is often more feared than it should be. A few months there and health is recovered. The cure cannot be obtained if one is frightened by the disease and attempts to hide it.

Theatres

AT THE GRAND

Elissa Landi, Fox Film star whose latest picture, "Wicked," opens Thursday at the Grand Theatre, is quite unfortunate in one of her hobbies. Since childhood her great joy has been to walk miles in the rain, clad in a waterproof coat and heavy walking shoes. She had plenty of opportunity to exercise this hobby while living in England but rain in California is "quite unusual" as the natives are wont to say. Hence "walking in the rain" is a pleasure that comes too rarely to please the athletically inclined actress. Victor McLaglen is Miss Landi's leading man in "Wicked," which Allen Dwan directed.

AT THE CLIFTONA

Ravishing costumes of unusual piquancy form an eye-filling part of "The Boudoir Diplomat," Universal's comedy of the gay affairs of a master lover, which is now playing at the Cliftona Theatre. Betty Compson, who plays the wife of an Ambassador, is seen in negligee costumes of the most charming description—in her own boudoir. And Mary Duncan, who is seen as the wife of a War Minister, wears costumes which are considerably more startling, though no less beautiful—in the boudoir of the philandering bachelor! In addition to Miss Compson and Miss Duncan, the cast of "The Boudoir Diplomat" includes Ian Keith, Jeanette Loff, Lawrence Grant, Lionel Belmore and Andre Penanger. Malcolm St. Clair directed.

SCHOOL FOR AMERICANS

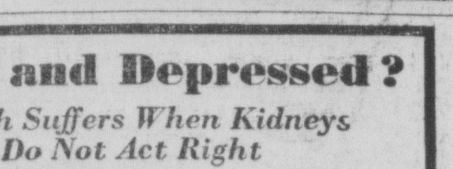

BERLIN—A college for American women students will be opened at the beginning of March, at first on a small scale, in the Siebenneichen Palace near Meissen. Heading it will be Baroness Monika von Miltitz owner of the palace and prime mover in the new institution. It is intended especially for young women who have studied at least two years in an American college and who desire to fit themselves for teaching German. However, the college will also prepare students for other professions for which a knowledge of German is important. It will be enlarged in the autumn of 1932.

LOVED TO EAT, AND NOW SHE CAN!

Much of the suffering from so-called "indigestion" or acid-dyspepsia could be avoided if everyone could know what thousands like Lillian Ralston have learned. This New York City business woman, who lives at 1160 Park Avenue, says: "I suffered from headaches and heartburn after meals; couldn't sleep like I should; never felt right."

"For five years I experimented with medicines and treatments, until I learned about Pape's Diapepsin. I have used three packages now; have gained five pounds, and feel fine."

If you, too, suffer from sourness, gas, belching, nausea, heartburn, dizziness, or pain after eating—either regularly or just at times, get a box of Pape's Diapepsin from your druggist. Then you need never worry again about what you eat.

How One Woman Lost 10 Lbs. in a Week

Mrs. Betty Lundecke of Dayton writes — I am using Kruschen to reduce weight — I lost 10 pounds in one week and cannot say too much to recommend it.

To take off fat easily, SAFELY and HARMLESSLY — take one half teaspoonful of Kruschen in a glass of hot water in the morning before breakfast — it is the safe way to lose unsightly fat and one bottle, that lasts a week costs but a trifle. It is the safest way to lose fat — money back.

But I care and get Kruschen satisfaction is numerous and you must safeguard your health.

MERRELL'S REPORT DISCLOSES HIGHWAY ACTIVITIES OF 1931

COLUMBUS, March 9 — Changes in state highway department operations promoting economy and efficiency are set forth in a report for 1931 just completed by O. W. Merrell, highway director, for Governor George White. The report also outlines results of highway activities ordered by the Governor to provide work for unemployed men and relieve distress in hundreds of communities.

Among the accomplishments of the department were a revision of the accounting system, creation of the position of planning engineer, reduction of motor vehicle expenditures, letting of contracts for 1106 miles of road improvement, reconstruction of 275 miles of highway and development of the statewide bridge building program as an emergency relief measure.

PREVENT PADDING

Through a survey conducted by an accountant, cumbersome and obsolete bookkeeping systems have been abolished, construction pay-rolls reduced from 175 to 24, a new form of gasoline distribution for state cars designed to eliminate abuses, and a personnel record system devised to prevent payroll padding practices which had grown up in previous administrations.

The new post of planning engineer embraces the duties of allocating construction funds, planning annual construction programs and keeping a constant check on highway finances.

In accordance with the Governor's plans for reducing state operating expenses, the department established a central garage for all state-owned cars within easy reach of all departments in Columbus. As the highway department operates the greatest number of motor vehicles its savings under-

Other activities of the department included advance widening and ditch work which provided jobs for 2566 additional unemployed men; acquisition of 3727 pieces of land for rights of way on 713 miles of road at a saving of 18 per cent under 1930 costs; a count of traffic to provide flow map as a guide in future highway operations; testing of 29,586 samples of road materials to insure high quality; initiation of a five-year road program; routine maintenance of 11,343 miles of highway at the lowest cost in years.

MANY UNEMPLOYED ARE GIVEN JOBS

NEW YORK, March 9 — A total of 187,023 previously unemployed persons obtained jobs throughout the country since the start of the drive of the united action for employment group, figures at headquarters here showed today.

The latest day's activities in the organized campaign resulted in placing 9,452 wage earners in gainful occupations. Reports represented 151 communities in 38 states.

Oklahoma led in the number of communities represented in the day's results, with 23, in which 3,368 workers were given employment. It also represented the largest number represented in any single report of the various states in the inception of the drive.

New York was second in the number of unemployment put to work with 1132, and Georgia third, with 442.

Minnesota continued to lead in the total number of idle returned to remunerative work, leading with 13,960. New York was second, with 17,091. Wisconsin third with 14,328.

In the latest tabulations, from 151 communities, 48 reported for the first time.

CURRENT EVENTS NEWS TO STUDES

DELAWARE, O., March 9 — College students aren't close followers of current events, an examination given at Ohio Wesleyan university here reveals.

Students enrolling for a course on "Interpretation of Current Events" in the journalism department were given a preliminary examination by Prof. D. W. Miller to ascertain how much they read the daily news.

Half of them couldn't identify the vice-president of the United States.

GEORGE WASHINGTON'S TRAVELS

By James W. Brooks

Historically Correct Sketches by CALVIN FARRER

IN the old court house at the right, long since vanished and the site of which is now occupied by a department store, George Washington was appointed surveyor of Culpeper County, Virginia, after having passed a rigid examination by the president and masters of William and Mary College, shown at the left. This was his first formal appointment, and papers yellowed with age record how proudly he took his first oath of office at the age of seventeen.

How One Woman Lost 10 Lbs. in a Week

Mrs. Betty Luedke of Dayton writes: "I am using Kruschen to reduce weight—I lost 10 pounds in one week and cannot say too much to recommend it."

To take off fat easily, SAFELY and HARMLESSLY—take one half teaspoonful of Kruschen in a glass of hot water in the morning before breakfast—it is the safe way to lose unsightly fat and one bottle that lasts 4 weeks costs but a trifle. If this diet bottle fails to convince you this is the safest way to lost fat—money back.

But be sure and get Kruschen. Satisfaction is guaranteed and you must safeguard your health.

MERRELL'S REPORT DISCLOSES HIGHWAY ACTIVITIES OF 1931

COLUMBUS, March 9—Changes in state highway department operations promoting economy and efficiency are set forth in a report for 1931 just completed by O. W. Merrell, highway director, for Governor George White. The report also outlines results of highways activities ordered by the Governor to provide work for unemployed men and relieve distress in hundreds of communities.

Among the accomplishments of the department were a revision of the accounting system, creation of the position of planning engineer, reduction of motor vehicle expenditures, letting of contracts for 1106 miles of road improvement, reconstruction of 275 miles of highway and development of the state-wide bridge building program as an emergency relief measure.

PREVENT PADDING

Through a survey conducted by an accountant, cumbersome and obsolete bookkeeping systems have been abolished, construction payrolls reduced from 176 to 24, a new form of gasoline distribution for state cars designed to eliminate abuses, and a personnel record system devised to prevent payroll padding practices which had grown up in previous administrations.

SAVE OLD ROADS

Introducing a policy of salvaging old roads by utilizing them as foundations for new surfaces, the department reconstructed and widened 275 miles of highway at the lowest cost attained in years. A total of $2,439,029 was expended in such work. Because of the economy effected it is planned to extend the reconstruction operation to 300 miles of old paying this year.

Letting of contracts was simplified by adoption of a rule requiring that awards be made within a day after bids were received. This eliminated delay and confusion experienced because rival material interests found time to elapse to promote demands that their products be used in the ten days formerly permitted to elapse between bids and awards.

Other activities of the department included advance widening and ditch work which provided jobs for 2556 additional unemployed men; acquisition of 3727 pieces of land for rights of way on 713 miles of road at a saving of 18 per cent under 1930 costs; a count of traffic to provide flow map as a guide in future highway operations; testing of 29,586 samples of road materials to insure high quality; initiation of a five-year road program; routine maintenance of 11,343 miles of highway at the lowest cost in years.

MANY UNEMPLOYED ARE GIVEN JOBS

NEW YORK, March 9—A total of 187,023 previously unemployed persons obtained jobs throughout the country since the start of the drive of the united action for employment group, figures at headquarters here showed today.

The latest day's activities in the organized campaign resulted in placing 9,452 wage earners in gainful occupations. Reports represented 151 communities in 38 states.

Oklahoma led in the number of communities represented in the day's results, with 23, in which 3,368 workers were given employment. It also represented the largest number represented in any single report of the various states in the inception of the drive.

New York was second in the number of unemployment put to work with 1132, and Georgia third, with 442.

Minnesota continued to lead in the total number of idle returned to remunerative work, leading with 18,960. New York was second, with 17,091, Wisconsin third with 14,328.

In the latest tabulations, from 151 communities, 48 reported for the first time.

CURRENT EVENTS NEWS TO STUDES

DELAWARE, O., March 9—College students aren't close followers of current events, an examination given at Ohio Wesleyan university here reveals.

Students enrolling for a course on "Interpretation of Current Events" in the journalism department were given a preliminary examination by Prof. D. W. Miller to ascertain how much they read the daily news.

Half of them couldn't identify the vice-president of the United States. Marc Connelly, author of "The Green Pastures," was mentioned as a baseball player. Tom Mooney, inmate of San. Quentin prison, was listed as a Democratic leader and by another student as a radio announcer.

Senator Huey Long of Louisiana, whose name was presented the students as plain Huey Long, was classified by one as a leader of the Chinese forces. Francis Ouimet, amateur golfer, was credited with being an ambassador from France by one student, and by another as the French premier.

The class had an accuracy of 79 per cent, however, when it came to identification of actors and actresses.

About the only thing that never returns to vogue is the old car.

GEORGE WASHINGTON'S TRAVELS

By James W. Brooks

FRONTIERSMEN and friendly Indians often camped about the wilderness home of Lord Fairfax and from them Washington learned much. He was now attending Nature's university.

IN the old court house at the right, long since vanished and the site of which is now occupied by a department store, George Washington was appointed surveyor of Culpeper County, Virginia, after having passed a rigid examination by the president and masters of William and Mary College, shown at the left. This was his first formal appointment, and papers yellowed with age record how proudly he took his first oath of office at the age of seventeen.

IN SOCIETY

Nature Talk Is Pleasing

A small but appreciative audience heard the splendid lecture on "Common Birds and their Habits" given by Edward Sinclair Thomas of Columbus at the high school auditorium Tuesday evening. Mr. Thomas illustrated his lecture with slide pictures taken by himself in his rambles through woods and fields.

Mr. Thomas stated that Circleville was to be congratulated on its fine high school orchestra which was one of the best drilled orchestras he has heard.

He also complimented Pickaway county on the naturalists it has produced. He spoke of the book, "Birds of Ohio" written by Dr. Howard Jones of this city, which at the present time commands the highest price of any nature book in Ohio.

He stated that Dr. E. R. Bales had the largest collection of bird eggs anywhere between the Allegheny mountains and Chicago. This collection is exhibited at Ohio State university.

Leslie Pontius and Floyd Bartley were complimented as being the two foremost field botanists in Ohio.

Several selections by the orchestra and a group of songs by Mrs. Harry Heffner were added features to the program.

Following the lecture at the school auditorium which was sponsored by the local chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution, a six o'clock dinner was enjoyed by 50 members of the D. A. R. at the home of Mrs. Orion King. The members' husbands, Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Pontius, Floyd Bartley, Dr. and Mrs. Howard Jones and Mr. Thomas and his assistant were honored guests.

BUSINESS WOMEN TO MEET THURSDAY

In celebration of the National Business Women's week, the local Business and Professional Women's club will have a dinner meeting at the Boggs hotel, Thursday evening.

Members of the Public Relations committee will be hostesses, Miss Minnie Palm being chairman. A short musical program is planned.

BEHIND the SCENE In HOLLYWOOD

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, Cal. — After four years, Anna Q. Nilsson is coming back.

Feeling fit and 30 pounds lighter than on her return from Europe, the Swedish star will make tests next week at several major studios. She says she can't bear to be away from the cameras any longer.

"How little these people know," she declares, "who object to being stopped for autographs and for talks over the microphone. Let them lose this for a while and they'd realize how much it means to them."

"These days I can walk down Hollywood Boulevard and not be recognized by anyone. But do I like the privacy? I don't. It only makes me realize how fleeting fame is."

Anna's story, during the last few years, is one of many obstacles overcome. Injured by a fall from a horse, she was off the screen for many months. Then she tried to come back too soon. The result was one picture, "The Blockade," followed by a relapse.

"How little these people know," she declares, "who object to being stopped for autographs and for talks over the microphone. Let them lose this for a while and they'd realize how much it means to them."

"These days I can walk down Hollywood Boulevard and not be recognized by anyone. But do I like the privacy? I don't. It only makes me realize how fleeting fame is."

Anna's story, during the last few years, is one of many obstacles overcome. Injured by a fall from a horse, she was off the screen for many months. Then she tried to come back too soon. The result was one picture, "The Blockade," followed by a relapse.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal. — After four years, Anna Q. Nilsson is coming back.

Feeling fit and 30 pounds lighter than on her return from Europe, the Swedish star will make tests next week at several major studios. She says she can't bear to be away from the cameras any longer.

"How little these people know," she declares, "who object to being stopped for autographs and for talks over the microphone. Let them lose this for a while and they'd realize how much it means to them."

LEGIONAIRES GO TO WASHINGTON C. H.

Local legionnaires are planning to attend a meeting of Paul Hughes Post at Washington C. H. Thursday evening.

LENTEN SERVICE

The first of the Lenten preaching services will be held at the Presbyterian church Wednesday at 7:30 p. m.

RESCUED FROM SCRAP-HEAP

Saved from the ignominious trip to the scrap heap to which they had been condemned after they had been decommissioned, these three destroyers at Philadelphia Navy Yard will once more return to duty, having been recommissioned. Captain Roscoe MacFall, who is in charge of the reconditioning work on the war craft, said the order for commissioning the almost-scraped destroyers was received from Washington before the situation in China became serious. Note the huge crane which is used for hoisting heavy machinery and guns. It is said to be the largest of its kind in the world.

Nature Talk Is Pleasing

A small but appreciative audience heard the splendid lecture on "Common Birds and their Habits" given by Edward Sinclair Thomas of Columbus at the high school auditorium Tuesday evening. Mr. Thomas illustrated his lecture with slide pictures taken by himself in his rambles through woods and fields.

Mr. Thomas stated that Circleville was to be congratulated on its fine high school orchestra which was one of the best drilled orchestras he has heard.

He also complimented Pickawayco on the naturalists it has produced. He spoke of the book, "Birds of Ohio" written by Dr. Howard Jones of this city which at the present time commands the highest price of any nature book in Ohio.

He stated that Dr. B. R. Bales had the largest collection of bird eggs anywhere between the Allegheny mountains and Chicago. This collection is exhibited at Ohio State university.

Leslie Pontius and Floyd Bartley were complimented as being the two foremost field botanists in Ohio.

Several selections by the orchestra and a group of songs by Mrs. Harry Heffner were added features on the program.

Preceding the lecture at the school auditorium which was sponsored by the local chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution, a six o'clock dinner was enjoyed by 50 members of the D. A. R. at the home of Mrs. Orion King. The members' husbands, Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Pontius, Floyd Bartley, Dr. and Mrs. Howard Jones and Mr. Thomas and his assistant were honored guests.

BUSINESS WOMEN TO MEET THURSDAY

In celebration of the National Business Women's week, the local Business and Professional Women's club will have a dinner meeting at the Boggs hotel, Thursday evening.

Members of the Public Relations committee will be hostesses, Miss Minnie Palm being chairman. A short musical program is planned.

COMMISSIONERS DO BUSINESS TUESDAY

Money Appropriated for Road Work in Pickaway-Twp; Animal Claims Paid.

Making appropriations, making animal claims and buying represents some of the business transacted by the county commissioners in their quarterly session meeting Tuesday.

The commissioners appropriated $292.80 from the county gasoline tax to be paid to the Pickaway-twp trustees to be used for road work.

Four animal claims representing the loss of 13 and injury of seven sheep were paid by the dads. Those allowed claims and the amounts follow: William Nugent, Deer Creek-twp, $19; Ed England, Darby-twp, $28; John Dum and Bessie Trapp, Madison-twp, $36 and Roger Hedges, Walnut-twp, $20.

Fifty-eight rod of 15-inch tile at a cost of $6 per rod was purchased for use in the village of New Holland.

The commissioners also ordered the purchase of one 24-inch sewer pipe for Washington-twp and one 6-30 sewer pipe for Monroe-twp.

Action on two claims filed by two N. Pickaway-st residents following the construction of the Pickaway-st bridge was expected to be taken up at Wednesday's meeting.

LEGIONAIRES GO TO WASHINGTON C. H.

Local legionnaires are planning to attend a meeting of Paul Hughey Post at Washington C. H. Thursday evening.

Members are asked to report with automobiles at Memorial Hall at 6 p. m.

The drum corps of both the local and the Chillicothe posts will be present.

LENTEN SERVICE

The first of the Lenten preaching services will be held at the Presbyterian church Wednesday at 7:30 p. m.

This will be in place of the usual mid-week service. Rev. Toensmeier will preach from the text, "Come hither, I will show thee the bride, the wife of the Lamb." The theme will be "Concerning the Church."

Every once in a while you see a statesman who thinks he is a leader just because he makes noise enough to attract the curious.

It wasn't until her return from Europe last year that she thought again of making a comeback. By this time slim figures were at the height of their vogue. Anna decided to take off 30 pounds. To do this she went on a starvation diet and was stricken with pneumonia. During her illness — and Hollywood hasn't heard this until now — she spent five weeks at a hospital under an assumed name.

But today all that is forgotten. Under the guidance of Freddie Frelich, who has managed her career for years, she's ready for the adventure of the talkies.

EVEN IF YOU'VE HEARD THIS, IT'S FUNNY.

They say the remark has been knocking around Hollywood for months, but have you heard Frederick Lonsdale's description of a certain British author?

"That man," said Lonsdale, "is every other inch a gentleman."

SOME GOSSIP YOU HAVEN'T HEARD

Hollywood understands that "Bh" Rogers, brother of Buddy, is reconciled with his pretty young wife... Johnny Farrow telephoned Lila Lee from London the other day, but the romance is still cold... Saw Helen Twelvetrees looking very smart with fur collar. Something new, or am I way behind in styles?... Lupe Velez is almost recovered from her pleurisy attack. She tells me she hasn't a romance to her name and, of all things, is devoting her time to making hook rugs.

When everything else fails, Jack Oakie says he's going to have fun loaning his four agents out... M. H. Hoffman, one of Hollywood's important independent producers, will leave for New York Saturday to arrange releases on a five-year plan. He'll do 25 features a year... You'll find Homer Croys "Headed for Hollywood" an amusing story about an Iowa beauty-contest winner who brings her family to chaperone her on her way to stardom. Papa is a former medicine-show proprietor, and there's an Indian chief, who can't get acclimated to Hollywood ways. Homer was pulling my leg when he said no Hollywood personalities are recognizable.

HE'S CHAMPION OPTIMIST.

With the Central Casting Bureau turning down nearly all applicants for registration, there's one man in Hollywood who spends two hours a day interviewing unknowns. He's Fred Datig, casting director, at Paramount. Fred manages to see about 75 people each day. In 20 years at the game, he claims to have discovered Laura La Plante, Janet Gaynor, Dick Arlen, George Bancroft, Frances Dee, Gary Cooper, Judith Wood and many other lesser-known players.

LAURA STEPS OUT

Pleased with her brief flier on the local stage, Laura La Plante is leaving today for Seattle where she will take the lead in a stock company presentation of "The Unexpected Husband." If she likes it, and Seattle likes her, she may remain there to do another play. Husband Bill Seiter will stay home and tend to the movies.

YOUNG DEMOCRATS ORGANIZE FOR NOVEMBER'S ELECTION

WASHINGTON, March 9.—The young Democratic clubs of America were brought into being today with the avowed purpose of enrolling 1,000,000 young voters in the national political campaign next fall.

Organized after a three day session, the new body received the sanction of the Democratic National committee and the leading Democrats throughout the country.

Tyre Taylor, of Raleigh, N. C., was named president and Miss Elizabeth Wheeler, of Butte, Mont., daughter of Senator Wheeler, was elected vice president. J. Boyden of Salt Lake City, Utah, is secretary.

Letters of approval were received from Speaker John N. Garner, Gov. Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland, Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York, Harry F. Byrd of Virginia, James M. Cox, John J. Raskob and John W. Davis.

Speaker Garner urged the young Democrats to follow the principles of Thomas Jefferson.

"The creed of Jefferson — equal and exact justice to all men; support of state government in all their rights; the preservation of the general government in its whole constitutional vigor; economy in public expense, and acquiescence in the decisions of the majority — is the only foundation upon which a Democracy can endure," said Garner.

Roosevelt advised the young Democrats that "they must be Democrats by conviction as well as by inheritance."

"On them will rest a large responsibility of maintaining our party belief in favor of things as they ought to be," he said. "We can lose victory only if we fall back to a conservative satisfaction."
